

Cacao to Chocolate

What's the difference between cacao and cocoa? Cacao is the term for the pods, beans, and ground-up beans of the cacao plant. Cocoa is the term typically used for the powder left after pressing the fat out of ground cacao beans. Cacao beans go through several steps before they develop their chocolate flavor.

